

Looking for Graduate Research Assistants for 2018

Developing New Human-Machine Interfaces

Opportunity

- Contributing to a new project related to augmented reality programming
 - Learning about other related smart human-machine interface technologies
 - Developing new applications
 - Working with Hololens (Microsoft) and Unity
 - PhD students will receive preference
 - All majors will be considered, with preference to ECE and CS graduate students with contrasted experience in programming
 - In collaboration with Los Alamos National Laboratory
 - Students will be able to work individually in their own applications in collaboration with the PI
-
- Send your resume and transcripts to Dr. Fernando Moreu fmoreu@unm.edu as soon as possible